Inventory of
First Nations Governance Project Reports

The main content and products of each First Nation governance project are noted in relation to three general categories: government structures, government procedures and management and administration. Projects that had a strategic direction, and involved either a review of First Nation governance,and/ or the development of a specific plan or strategy for moving forward are noted.

Legend:

1) Government Structures:

a) Proposed Structures: The project includes a proposal for a new First Nation government structure that either displaces, significantly modifies, or is in addition to existing Band Council structures of government.

b) Defined Roles and Responsibilities: The project specifies duties, roles and responsibilities of existing structures of government, namely Chief and Council and/or First Nation government administrations.

2) Core Government Procedures:

a) Core Governance Policies: The project developed core policies and procedures of First Nation government, including for example, procedures relating to the conduct of Council meetings.

b) Conflict of Interest/Code of Conduct: The project results include conflict of interest procedures, rules or codes of conduct for public officials or others.

c) Leader Selection / Elections: A leadership selection or election code, law or procedure was included as part of the project documentation.

d) Appeal / Redress: The project led to the development of mechanisms for the appeal of administrative decisions, the redress of grievances or dispute resolution procedures.

3) Management and Administration:

a) Financial Management/Administration: A code, policy or law governing financial management and administration was developed.

b) Human Resource Policies: The project addressed human resource management and policy issues, including through the development of codes, policies, manuals or procedures.

c) Program Policies:	The project resulted in the codification of program or service related policies, for example in the area of housing, recreation or social services.
d) Communications:	The project included a plan or set of tools to facilitate communication on governance matters, or the use of information technologies in First Nation government administration.

4) Other:

Other documentation may be included, for example, existing First Nation policies and by-laws, protocols and agreements, community information etc.
